Bengaluru: It's time for students to do some bivouacking on the campus even as they indulge in merrymaking. Come February 26, the RV College of Engineering (RVCE) on Mysore Road will host the city's first campout college fest.

24/7 FESTIVAL

The four-day event, '8th Mile', will be a 24/7 affair. Students can catch forty winks at 150 tents that have been set up on the campus

A platform to understand many cultures

Grooming students to be technical leaders is not enough; we are organizing a campout fest to give them a platform to understand different cultures and become leaders in life too. From folk to classical, all genres of music will be played during the fest

The campout music festival, organized by RVCE and Storm Festival, will begin with the performance of Latori, a folk-rock fusion band. On February 27, fashionistas will walk the ramp and DJs will set the stage on fire. February 28 will see Rocktane (Battle of Bands), with various bands fighting for the best title. Fusion group Indian Ocean and singer Usha Uthup will provide the perfect climax on March 1. Maanass S Prabhakar, student organizer of the fest, said: "There will be bonfire and student bands will perform through the night. Gaming buffs can play video games too." Some 15,000 students from various colleges will take part. The entry fee will be between Rs 100 and Rs 300. The revenue generated will be used for setting up a green zone on the campus. Lavin Uthappa, director of Storm Festival, said they want to give the student community a different experience.
